

I don't want the rules changed on broadcast ownership. I don't think the public will be served by allowing corporations to own more of a market share than the rules allow now. Why does the FCC think it is in the public interest to change the current limitations?